Your work is excellent. I also did the colon massage and bought a few of the items for a friend. I drank bone broth as well which was very soothing. I now drink 20-40 oz of water every morning when I wake up and take probiotics. Then a cup of bone broth. Afterwards vitamin c with msm. Aloe vera juice is added to my water. I sometimes rotate between lilly of the desert or the trader joe's brand. Thanks to you I now masterfully massage by colon and have large releases. I've always had the squatty potty so this adds to it all. Thanks so much.

I know that I may have more so I will get back on it. I have found another source for product and they are working just fine, but thank you Jini.

Be prepared to have family and even complete strangers make comments about a "strong smell!" trailing you wherever you go (from your pores). Some say it's like garlic, others like, "salad," LOL. Either way it's potent to those with sensitive sniffers. But results are so good that it's worth being smelly (short term - 12-24 hours from ingestion).

After a while I could not use the DMSO as it itched my skin too much to tolerate. And so I omitted it for internal use just to be safe.

My symptoms got much worse after 2 months on the protocol. I ended up having an intestinal perforation, due to the pressure on the structure, and having emergency surgery. I am doing much better now but regret trying the protocol. I think if I had opted for medical treatment it may have delayed surgery, or if I had chosen to have the surgery before I was in a dangerous situation it would have been smarter.

If it was for myself, I probably would have done the whole protocol, but for a child, I can't be sure what's going on in side. I've tried DMSO for myself and it burns...I'm a redhead. Hard to guage the iodine. Did castor oil was soothing and my friend found that that alone cleared up her daughters cronic appendicitis. Did buy George aloe vera. Didn't give that a good try.

I was disappointed that It didn't work for me but I have heard really good things about it so I would still recommend someone give it a try before resorting to surgery. I developed neuropathy while trying it- and it went away as soon as I discontinued it- other wise I may have tried doing it for longer. However, it did seem to make my symptoms worse instead of better.

I modified the castor oil pack. Instead of using flannel, I put the castor oil on and wrapped in cellophane (clear plastic wrap) then used a heating pad at nite.

I started out feeling as if I had a complete blockage, which has diminished to feeling like there is a much smaller knot in that location. I was nauseous every day, which has gone away. I was in pain every day, which has diminished to about twice a week. Thanks

As a 10 year medication induced IBS sufferer your website has provided me with years of info. However after complications from a gallbladder removal in January of this year, and an unknown diagnosis for debilitating chronic pain that all the physicians I went to kept saying it's your GI and finally after a colonoscopy came back healthy and clean the stress level of the pain and unknown cause of my pain around my navel - I had a lengthy bout with my IBS and had to resort to serious microbes to get myself back to my bowel normal. The interest in the stricture heal was due to the research in trying to find the root to my chronic "abdominal pain" and that lead to "adhesion disorder". That was not the issue, my condition was related to complex nerve damage.

I do suggest & recommend your site to others. Thank you

I have UC that may stem from a 1986 MAP infection. My dad had Crohns disease and it was rarely under control. After I started using the topical protocol I noticed fluid buildup and scar tissue disappeared from an old leg injury. My UC symptoms have improved mildly but the protocol didn't seem to affect an infected area of scar tissue in my rectum. Said area has been problematic for decades and recently caused a buildup of scar tissue. The only thing that has reduced the inflammation/infection is serrapeptase and colloidal silver 2x/day orally. If I can kill the MAP infection I'll refocus on the scar protocol.

Dear Jini,

Many thanks for sharing your knowledge in this area. I have only recently added the internal/oral protocol to the external one, so my results my not be seen as yet.

I was wondering if you'd be able to share any ideas re gastritis, of course if you have had any experience or can recommend anyone who is knowledgeable or experienced (please email me if you do.)

Thanks for all your help and please be mindful that your efforts are eye openers for me and I cannot image what state I'd be in if you never gave me hope.

Kind regards

Q7: Comments - any and all comments, feedback, advice, stories, etc. are welcome!

I'm surprised this survey is so short and simple, and lacks detail. I will expand upon my answers below. I'm grateful for your new approach to healing strictures!

I generally do 2 oral treatments and 1 topical treatment every day, and would like to add 1 treatment each per day. Sometimes I skip a treatment.

The only item I didn't purchase of your recommended brands was the oregano oil. Mine is a 70% carvacrol for 4 drops. I take 9 drops each dose.

I also did not follow the dietary aspect, but tried to keep it liquid and healthy. I ate smoothies with hemp or rice protein, bananas, and my choice of fruits, vegetables, spices, and supplements about 2/3 of the time. Sometimes I ate pureed soups. When I ate solid food, I avoided any insoluble fiber. I avoided my triggers (gluten, sugar, dairy, peppers) at least 2/3 the time.

I struggle way too much with emotional eating, but I am working on it. I've had extensive childhood trauma. Life has not been easy as a result of the symptoms the trauma has led to.

I stopped the SSKI after 22 days out of concern that it might be harming me. Although I still have topical treatment left with SSKI in it that I'm using until it's gone. I always have symptoms of a messed up thyroid (fatigue, dizziness, hair loss- but not too much, generally thin hair), although I've never received test results showing that. I will do another 3 weeks of SSKI after I get my annual thyroid test results back in March.

I think this protocol is worth a try, but I don't try to convince anyone to do it. I talk about my experience and the reasons behind what I'm doing. If anyone wants to know more, I'll gladly share your protocol with them.

Even though I have times of low energy still, it seems I have more energy/stamina. I have a lot less pain and bloating. No more of what I call "episodes" of cramping, fever/chills/malaise/fatigue followed by vomiting and a large type 4 BM

Jini's Intestinal StrictureHeal Results Survey

since I've been on this protocol.

My bowel movements seemed to have a pattern I don't understand. It seems new, but maybe I'm just noticing it now. Maybe the protocol is making it consistent, but it isn't good. I often get a BM that starts with Type 1 and ends with Type 4. Occasionally I have a day without a BM. I also have days with multiple BMs, healthy BMs, or diarrhea. Diarhhea usually comes after eating chocolate, dairy, or at the beginning of my period.

I think I have a better idea of where the strictures are now that I do a lot more massage.

The protocol was a slow start for me. Figuring out the financials and logistics was the hardest part. I'm still committed to doing this at least through late Spring. I would like to know if a maintenance program of reduced dosages is ok because I don't see Medicaid or Medicare paying for an ultrasound to find out what's going on in here, but I want to be sure I'm making progress.

Some background in case you don't know my situation. I always had gut trouble, but it got much worse at age 16. Diagnosed with gastritis. At 18, I was diagnosed with IBS and basically dismissed and given drugs that made it worse. I suffered all those years. At 34 I was fed up, got better insurance, and tried harder to get to the bottom of it. A colonoscopy ruled out Crohn's and brought no real help, just more drugs that made it worse. I started the Body Ecology diet and learned about Weston A. Price's research. I met a Network Care (or whatever it's called now) chiropractor and received treatment and guidance from him. He referred me to a Board certified nutritionist who started treating me for an inflamed bowel. A lump was found by my gyno in my pelvic area. She directed me to see a gastroenterologist. I found a new gastroenterologist because the old one did no good. She directed me to the emergency room after looking at my cat scan. Then I was diagnosed with Crohn's after the Cat scan, MRI, and blood tests proved it. I did steroids for a while, but refused drugs. The gastroenterologist was nasty to me because of it. I found a new gastroenterologist who I also fired because he believed that since I gained weight I was ok. I knew he was wrong. I also felt he was a misogynist. I improved a lot with the nutritionists help. I gained my weight back. I still had problems because of scar tissue. My next gastroenterologist convinced me I needed surgery, or I could die. I gave in because I was depressed. I did the surgery my way. I chose the surgeon and only let him take out what I wanted taken out, if necessary. He would've taken out part of my ileocecal valve and viable parts of my intestines simply because of the scar tissue obstructing the way. I was given 2 stricture plasties, but they did little to help the blockages.

So here I am. I assume I had Crohn's since I was 16 because of the symptoms I experienced, and didn't have a clue what to do about it until I was 34. That's 18 years of scar tissue build up. I'm guessing I may need to use this protocol for a long time. What do you think?

I have a 26 page journal on this protocol that I would share if you want it, with the note that it not be altered. It includes questions and suggestions highlighted in yellow.

I had previously sent a list of at least 19 questions to someone on your team, and received only 6 answers - not all even directly answered the question. I was unable to find my 19 questions, but did see that someone named Arghen altered the document. It could be my own mistake.

In the future, if it is needed , please make changes on a new file with a different name to avoid any loss of my information. Thanks!

Thank you for sharing this protocol and for sharing your insights.

Q7: Comments - any and all comments, feedback, advice, stories, etc. are welcome!

I have only been doing the program for one week. I believe that I have a stricture as a result of repeated diverticulitis episodes, and I have been experiencing loose or very narrow stool and stomach pain since May or June of this year. The soonest I could get an appointment with a gastroenterologist was February 8, so when I found your blog and ebook online, it made sense to me and I decided to try it. I have been following the protocol as closely as possible. Some days I can't do the heated castor oil pack, but I always at least apply the topical stricture heal with castor oil on top while I have breakfast. I have been on a liquid diet for lunch and dinner, and then I eat a light dinner.

I am having one problem that I would like your input on. The oral structure heal is causing pretty severe headaches a short time after I take it. I am a "caffeine addict", and the headache is a cross between a caffeine headache and a sinus headache. If I take caffeine before the stricture heal, the headache isn't as bad, so I'm guessing that the stricture heal dilates my blood vessels, causing the headache, and the caffeine constricts them. Do you have any idea which component might be causing this, or how I should deal with it?

After only one week, my stool consistency is NORMAL most of the time, and almost of normal size. I am THRILLED, and if this improvement continues, I will happily cancel my doctors appointment in February! Thank you for your help. Looking forward to hearing from you!

I think anything is worth trying when you are suffering. I did mainly the oral protocol and worked on diet, so I don't know the exact/combined source of my improvement. I did do the castor oil packs, but not the DMSO topically.

As far as the stricture protocol went, my mom was longer impacted. However, she had stage 4 ovarian cancer. Her oncologist and hospice nurse believed that her life was extended by about two months due to taking these steps. Her passing was more gentle than expected

What I eventually found out is I had a tumor albeit cancerous located in my colon. It was 90% blockage when I had it cut off. I now have a ostomy bag. I am eating healthy again and trying to figure out ways to shrink my tumor. They left 15" so maybe someday I can get reconnected once the tumor and cancer are gone. Any suggestions that truly work?

I tried to get my daughter to use it but she opted for surgery. She has severe Lupus and couldn't stop eating so the top part of her stomach was removed. Some five years later scar tissue locked the bottom of her oesophagus and she could only drink water. So when she looked like a skeleton she was given a nasal to stomach tube and built up with Complan. She then had a stomach bypass, but even for that they had to cut away scar tissue to get a tube in. She is home now with UTI. What i am hoping is that when she is feeling better she will try your protocol to get rid of the remaining scar tissue. I have the organic castor oil ready.

Multiple doctors visits, multiple endoscopies, colonoscopies was very results. The only thing that cured me 100% and was able to help me get pregnant, was the structure heal protocol.I still take probiotics daily, and watch what I eat, but feel I have recovered and I'm not battling constant stomach problems.
